Flat Earth Christine Garwood

Garwood shares detailed stories of key people throughout the relatively short history of Flat Earth noise-making. She makes pertinent points throughout, and at the end of the day presents an eye opening read that makes these believers, who are so maligned by society, feel like actual, relatable human beings (though definitely eccentric ones).

"Bullinger's first appearance in flat-earth annals was probably in 1873, when one 'E.B.' of 'the Vicarage' wrote a flat letter published in the June 1873 Zetetic. In 1877, he subscribed for six copies of Carpenter's Delusion of the Day, but he was still at pains to conceal his flat-earth sympathies (he is one of two subscribers whose names are not listed). In the premier issue of Earth ...

Among many versions of the flat-earth myth, as the historian Jeffrey Burton Russell has noted, is the fallacy that nobody knew it was round before Columbus discovered America in 1492. Less far-fetched is the contention that the ancient Greeks realized the rotundity of the earth but this knowledge was lost to humankind through the backward and superstitious 'Dark Ages'. Then there are ...
